A CONFERENCE YOU WON'T WANT TO MISS

This conference will focus on healing relationships following emotional or physical affairs as well as the damage caused by fantasy relationships.

The path each couple walks is unique but there are some basics that are similar. You will learn to recognize areas in which your relationship needs to grow and will be given direction and tools to help move forward on the path to healing.

WORKSHOPS

Each workshop will be focused on developing new skills. You will learn about new behaviors and have tools to relate differently.

- Turning Trigger Moments into Healing Opportunities: Like the aftershocks of a severe earthquake, "reminders" of the affair(s) seem to shake things up all over again. Traumatized spouses often sink into a dungeon of despair and offending partners get exasperated and discouraged. Come and learn practical tools for dealing with "triggers" and how to stop sabotaging the healing you both desire. Dan and Linda MacDonald
- "Does Forgiving Mean Trusting?" How will I ever be able to forgive him? When will she ever trust me again? Explore these familiar questions and work on skills to find the answers together. Dennis and Georgia Miller
- Rebuilding Intimacy: Heart, Body & Mind: How's your friendship and sex life since sexual impurity has intruded into your marriage? Come hear how to love and like each other again (heart), reconnect physically (body) and renew your willingness to risk (mind). This lighthearted, practical and humorous (really) workshop is best suited for couples who both are ready, willing and able to work on this aspect of their healing. Blake and Melissa Williams
- Achieving and Maintaining Open and Honest Communication: Topics to be covered will include getting to truth, overcoming defensiveness, finding ways to share information that calms and learning to discuss feelings. Earl and Sandy Wilson

Dan and Linda MacDonald draw upon many years of personal and professional experience dealing with intimate betrayal. Dan has served in a variety of leadership roles with Celebrate Recovery and is the pastor of DuPont Presbyterian Church. Linda, as a Marriage and Family Therapist, has specialized in helping people recover from the trauma of infidelity for 24 years. She is the author of, How to Help Your Spouse Heal from Your Affair, which has proven to be a corner-turner in the aftermath of betrayal. They are happily married with 4 adult children. www.lindajmacdonald.com www.dupontchurch.com

Dennis and Georgia Miller Dennis and Georgia Miller have been married for 35 years and for the last 5+ years have represented International Christian Ministries in the Northwest. Because of their own life-changing experiences with sexual addiction, they provide lay-counseling for couples and individuals who are dealing with the emotional trauma of betrayal. They have developed curriculum for groups of couples in recovery called "Under Construction". Georgia has also authored books on the topic. www.heartwords.org

Blake and Melissa Williams' marriage and ministry survived Blake's addiction to pornography. Twelve years later Blake directs and Melissa volunteers with Pure Life Alliance, a local intra-church ministry providing web resources, church consulting, purity groups for men, and support groups for their hurting wives. Blake & Melissa are amazed to be coming up on their 24th wedding anniversary. Down time finds them hanging out at home with The Schnau, training for the next marathon or riding Oregon's twisty back-roads on their sport bikes. www.purelifealliance.com

Earl and Sandy Wilson have been married 50 years and offer both professional expertise and personal experience in dealing with these issues. The Wilson's co-direct Tuff Stuff Ministries. Earl is an author and psychologist in private practice specializing in treating men with patterns of compulsive sexual behavior.
